NEW YORK, January 18, 2007 – The Lazard Global Total Return & Income Fund (NYSE:LGI) has announced the components of distributions made by the Fund in 2006.

The cumulative distributions for the fiscal year 2006 totaled $2.339 per share and were composed of $1.116 of net investment income (48%), and $1.223 of net realized long-term capital gains (52%). There was no return of capital in 2006 and the Fund has not returned capital to investors since its inception. The amounts and sources of distributions reported are not for tax reporting purposes. Shareholders will receive a Form 1099-DIV for the calendar year that will report these distributions for federal income tax purposes. Shareholders should not draw any conclusions about the Fund's investment performance from the amount of this distribution or from the terms of the Fund's level distribution policy.

The Fund's objective is total return, consisting of capital appreciation and current income. The Fund seeks to achieve its objective by primarily investing in a portfolio of approximately 35 to 45 equity securities with a market capitalization of at least $5 billion at the time of purchase, that are domiciled in those countries that comprise the MSCI World Index. The Fund seeks enhanced income by investing in short duration (typically below one year) emerging market forward currency contracts and other emerging market debt instruments.
